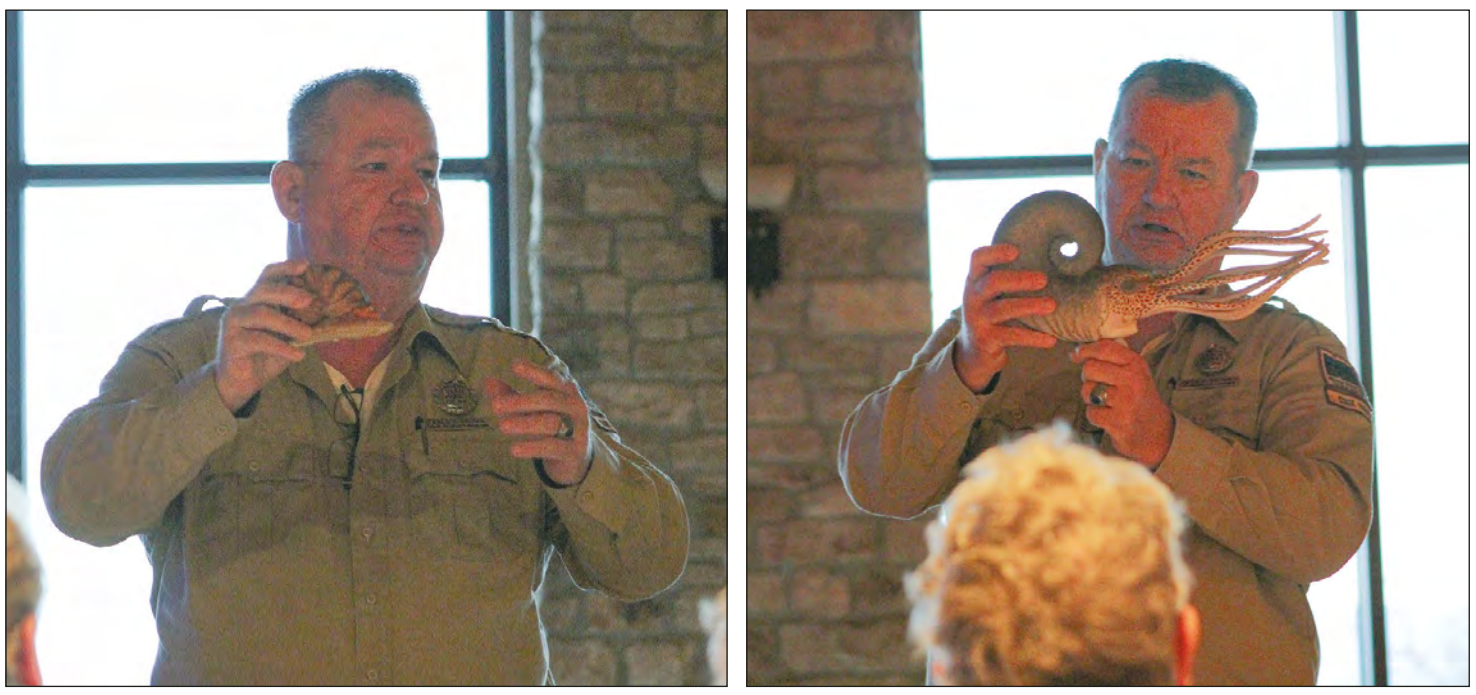
A look way, way back in time



Dale Brown, assistant property manager at Falls of the Ohio State Park, was at Clifty Falls Saturday to talk about the history of fossils in the region, some of which could be millions of years old. Southeastern Indiana was once littered with sea snails like the one shown above left, Brown said. Brown shows his audience an ancient cephalopod (right), some of which could be more than 25 feet long. (Courier staff photos by Collin Overton)

After the lecture, the audience had the chance to inspect real examples of the fossils Brown had discussed.

Free e-cig quit program for young adult Hoosiers

From Indiana Dept. of Health

INDIANAPOLIS—The Indiana State Department of Health in partnership with the Truth Initiative® has announced a text message program to help Indiana teens and young adults who want to quit vaping.

The "This is Quitting" program was created with input from teens, college students and young adults who have attempted to or successfully quit e-cigarettes. Hoosier youth who need help quitting vaping can text "Indiana" to 88709 and receive age-appropriate recommendations about ways to quit.

"Teen vaping has reached epidemic proportions in Indiana and across the U.S.," said State Health Commissioner Kris Box. "While we'd like to see a world where no young person uses these products, the reality is that e-cigarette use in Indiana middle and high school students has increased more than 350 percent since 2012. We have to meet our youth where they are comfortable to help them quit, and texting is a proven way to do that."

Indiana youth who enroll in This is Quitting will receive one support text per day for at least 60 days after their quit date. Individuals who are interested in ending e-cigarettes use but aren't yet ready to set a quit date will receive at least four weeks of messages focused on building skills and confidence to prepare for quitting.

Users can receive on-demand support for cravings, stress, slips and a desire for more tips or inspiration in addition to their scheduled interactive messages.

Upon completion of the program, users will receive periodic text messages and may continue to receive messages of support for as long as needed.

Printable flyers and palm cards with the text code and number are available for download through VapeFreeIndiana.isdh.in.gov, as well as more information about the program.

Jennings man convicted in 21 illegal firearms

Courier staff report

NEW ALBANY – United States Attorney Josh J. Minkler announced Monday that Wayne Komsi III, 58, of North Vernon, was convicted on two counts of making a false statement during the purchase of firearm, after a two-day jury trial in the federal court in New Albany before U.S. District Judge Tanya Walton Pratt.

Although he had a pending felony of resisting law enforcement from 2017 in Jennings County that prohibited him from owning a firearm, Komsi attended a gun auction on March 3, 2018, where he purchased 21 firearms. Komsi falsely indicated on three Firearms Transaction Records, March 6, March 20, and April 3, 2018, that he was not prohibited. Komsi fraudulently filled out another transaction record on May 26, 2018 in an attempt to purchase an additional firearm.

"The U.S. Attorney's Office is committed to reducing gun violence by keeping firearms out of the hands of those who are prohibited from possessing firearms," said Minkler. "If you choose to lie and buy firearms, you will be prosecuted fully under federal law."

According to Assistant United States Attorneys Michelle P. Brady and Lindsay E. Karwoski, who are prosecuting this case for the government, Komsi faces a sentence of up to 5 years in federal prison followed by three years of supervised release.

County took in almost $500K in 2019 tax on innkeepers

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

Jefferson County's Tourism industry took in almost a half-million dollars just from the county's InnKeepers' Tax in 2019, according to a report from Visit Madison Inc. received Monday at its first meeting of 2020.

Innkeepers' Tax collection, the 5% fee that tourists pay on each room or rental at motels, hotels and Airbnbs in Jefferson County, was approximately $465,419.18 in 2019 alone, about a 20.57 percent increase over 2018.

Visit Madison Executive Director Tawana Thomas said that number is about 99% solid only because the Jefferson County Auditor's Office has estimated the county's receipts for December at about $22,000 and that number could go up or down once the final receipts are in for the month.

Inkeepers' Tax Receipts are one way to determine the strength of the community's tourism industry in terms of visitors to the city, the number of rooms being rented and the room rates offered locally. The development of Airbnbs, and the ability to collect taxes on those rooms, has added to the community's revenues through the tax. Twenty years ago, the community collected $173,443.55 on the Inkeepers' Tax and in 2009 $265,416.33 was collected.

Meanwhile, Visit Madison had budgeted $392,306.50 for 2019 — slightly more than the $386,008.07 the Innkeepers' Tax collected in 2019 — and spent $392,307.00. With more money coming in, the Visit Madison and Jefferson County Tourism boards have said they hope to earmark more funds for tourism development and growth in 2020 to try to continue reinvesting in an industry that impacts hundreds of businesses in Madison and Jefferson County.

In addition...

Courier staff report

Editor's note: Sometimes a story is published and information comes to us after. We're going to use "In addition" to provide some of that later information.

A Jan. 18 story — "Local school grad rates in range of 2018" — reported the Christian Academy of Madison having no graduates in 2019, citing state data. School administrator Anna Gosman said the school actually graduated seven, but the Department of Education does not measure graduation rates in classes smaller than 10 students so as not to skew graduation numbers. The private academy normally graduates 10 to 15 seniors each year and has only had one student drop out for reasons unrelated to homeschooling or school transfer reasons. That student later attained a GED, Gosman said. The Christian Academy was established in 2007 and graduated its first class of seniors in 2014. — Collin Overton

A Jan. 21 story — "Major Ben McKay named interim Madison police chief" — reported the transitions taking place as Madison searches for a new police chief. The list of 68 applicants reported in the story will be reduced to about five finalists by later this week. Those finalists then will be interviewed at a future date. McKay is one of the 68 candidates. Former chief Jeremey Perkins, who did not apply, has been reassigned to the department at the rank of sergeant. McKay said Perkins is qualified for the rank of captain, but the department now has all three captains slots filled by Dan Stephan, Rick Mundt and Bruce Heaton, all 20-plus year veterans. McKay said as soon as a slot opens, Perkins will be promoted to captain by the Police Merit Board pursuant to state statute. He will then enter the department's one-year probationary period before achieving the rank full status. — Mark Campbell

A Jan. 23 story — "4 road workers fired; 1 arrested in Trimble meth case" — reported the situation in Trimble County when the head of its nine-person transportation department was arrested and charged with possession of methamphetamine and four other workers were fired after refusing to take drug tests. As the magistrates scrambled to make sure they could staff the highway trucks and hired new workers, they also voluntarily took drug tests, which we reported. Chris Liter, Kirby Melvin, J.D. Jones and Kenny Green voluntarily took the drug tests and passed, but Liter let us know we forgot to mention that County Attorney Crystal Heinz also volunteered and passed a test. — Collin Overton

Appeals court rules for gay couple in birth certificate suit

Indiana

LAFAYETTE — A federal appeals court sided with a gay married couple who challenged Indiana's birth records law, arguing that it discriminates against them and their children because birth certificates don't account for same-sex spouses as parents. The decision from the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Jan. 17 reaffirmed a lower court's ruling in a 2015 case filed by Ashlee and Ruby Henderson that required the state to recognize legitimately the couple's children as their own. The Hendersons, of Lafayette, alleged that local and state health officials discriminated against them when the Tippecanoe County Health Department declined to put both of their names as parents on their son's birth certificate in December 2014. The county at the time allowed only Ruby Henderson, the birth mother, to be listed as a parent. The three-judge panel appeals court rejected the state's appeal, upholding U.S. District Court Judge Tanya Walton Pratt's 2016 ruling. "The district court's order requiring Indiana to recognize the children of these plaintiffs as legitimate children, born in wedlock, and to identify both wives in each union as parents, is affirmed," the appeals court wrote in its 10-page ruling. Ashlee Henderson told the Journal & Courier that she was surprised when she heard about the decision, which she has been awaiting since the case was argued in May 2017. "My first reaction was such relief and shock," said Henderson, who now also has a daughter. "After such a long wait, it was such an indescribable feeling to finally have answers. Good answers at that." The Indiana attorney general's office is "disappointed" in the ruling and will consider next steps, spokeswoman Melissa Gustafson said. The state could seek to appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court. Karen Celestino-Horseman, Indianapolis attorney representing the Hendersons, praised the ruling. "This one is just further affirmation of these families," Celestino-Horseman said. "You'd think this would be settled. ... But we'll wait to see what the state does. Wait, again."

One-room schoolhouse razed in Dubois Co.

JASPER — A one-room schoolhouse where the last lessons were taught in early 1950s has been dismantled after efforts to find a buyer for the small southern Indiana building failed. The Dick School had educated generations of Dubois County residents in rural Jasper from 1892 to 1951. But a few weeks ago, the shed-liked building was taken down piece by piece. The weatherboard structure with a tin roof was moved to a new location after it was closed, and it had remained in good shape. Robin Pate, the owner of the property where the building was, had advertised the old schoolhouse and reached out to the Dubois County Historical Society. But Pate couldn't find any takers for the school, which had been the region's last functioning one-room schoolhouse. She's selling the two-acre site on which the building stood. In its heyday, the school had housed eight grades. The school was named after the local Dick family because it was built on ground the family had owned. That land was deeded over for the purpose of a schoolhouse in 1882, and classes began a decade later. Local historian Tom Kellams said he hopes some record of the small schoolhouse remains as a reminder to future generations. "I just hate to see the history of a lot of the old schools disappear," he said.

Nature preserve with 'significant' cave OK'd

TASWELL — Indiana's newest state nature preserve features dramatic limestone outcrops and a cave that's inhabited by rare animals adapted to life in total darkness. The Natural Resources Commission recently approved the creation of the Patoka Hills Nature Preserve, which spans nearly 27 acres in southern Indiana's Crawford County. The Indiana Department of Natural Resources said the new preserve contains one of Indiana's finest paleontological sites in a small cave that the agency calls "highly significant." Staff from the Indiana State Museum have been excavating inside that cave since 1987 and their discoveries have shed light on Indiana's past climate, plants and animals during the latter part of the last ice age. The DNR said that cave is also home to a springtail insect and a cave millipede, both of which lack eyes and pigmentation and are rare worldwide. The largely forested nature preserve is located near the small community of Taswell about 15 miles northwest of the Ohio River. The site is home to noteworthy plant species, including two state endangered plants. Indiana's approval of the Patoka Hills Nature Preserve boosts to 290 the number of state-designated sites in Indiana that are protected by the Nature Preserves Act.

IGC allowing wagers on who'll win Oscars

INDIANAPOLIS — Indiana is giving gamblers a chance to put down wagers on who'll be winners in next month's Academy Awards. That option for those interested in betting on the Oscar winners for best picture and other film categories comes under the state's sports wagering law that took effect in September. The Indiana Gaming Commission approved the Oscar bets as the law allows wagering on non-sporting events that meet integrity criteria. Those wagers can be placed at casino sportsbooks or through online sports betting apps licensed by the commission. New Jersey became the first state last year to accept wagers on the Oscars, taking after a common practice in Europe. New Jersey saw nearly $750,000 wagered on the Oscars, with the sportsbooks keeping nearly a quarter of it. The Indiana law is broad enough that wagering on election outcomes could be possible. Republican House Speaker Brian Bosma said legislators didn't know they would be allowing Oscar wagering when they approved legalizing sports betting last spring.

STATE BRIEFS

Homeless man died close to getting help

SOUTH BEND — A homeless man who was found dead under a northern Indiana bridge was near the top of the list to receive permanent government-funded housing or a voucher to rent a private apartment or house, an advocate for the homeless said. The St. Joseph County Coroner's office has ruled that Darrell Bradberry, 57, died from dysrhythmia, or an abnormal heart rhythm, caused by hypothermia, the South Bend Tribune reported. "It's concerning. It's frustrating. It's sad, tragic," said Brendan Devitt, a project manager at the Center for Homeless in South Bend. Bradberry's brother and sister-in-law, James and Martha Bradberry, said they would get in their car and look for Darrell when he started living on the streets 10 years ago. "In retrospect, I wish there hadn't been a wall built, that he could have called," James Bradberry said Wednesday. "But there was a wall built. I built a wall, I'm ashamed to say. How sad somebody can't call when they're freezing and say, 'Help me.'" Bradberry was the second homeless man to die in South Bend due to the cold weather in less than a month. Anthony Young, 44, died of hypothermia in December. Workers and volunteers at South Bend's homeless shelters said they knew Bradberry, and that he was a regular at the night-time Weather Amnesty program. Staff members at Our Lady of the Road, which provides shelter for the homeless during the day, said they believe they saw him briefly on Saturday, the day he was found dead. "He was one of the nicest men you'd ever meet," said Lisa Loww, a volunteer who works with the homeless. "He was one of our sweetest older homeless gentleman that we've had."

Prof may sue over arrest during protest

BLOOMINGTON — An Indiana University associate professor arrested last summer while protesting against a farmers' market vendor alleged to have ties to a white supremacist group has taken a step toward filing a civil lawsuit against the City of Bloomington. Attorneys for Cara Caddoo recently filed a tort claim seeking compensation of at least $500,000. That filing signals that she may sue over her arrest at the Bloomington Community Farmers' Market. Caddoo was arrested July 27 on a preliminary charge of misdemeanor trespass after holding a sign in front a vendor's booth saying that it "is operated by members of Identity Evropa, a white nationalist hate group." That group has since been renamed the American Identity Movement. Caddoo, who's an associate professor of history, was released from jail the same day without posting bond. No charges were filed by Monroe County prosecutors. Caddoo's attorneys indicate in their tort claim that they might pursue claims against the city for wrongful arrest, defamation of character and intentional infliction of emotional distress, as well as deprivation of rights under the First, Fourth and Fourteenth amendments. The city has three months to respond to the claim. Bloomington's mayor temporarily suspended the farmers' market in July following threats of violence. The market resumed in August.

Lawyer faces DUI after announcing candidacy

NEWBURGH — An Indiana attorney was arrested on drunken driving charges shortly after announcing his candidacy for the state Legislature. Charles Richard Martin, who also goes by "Rick," was arrested early Thursday after an Indiana State Police trooper pulled him over, according to WFIE-TV. The 50-year faced misdemeanor charges of operating a vehicle while intoxicated and was cited for speeding 65 mph in a 45-mph zone, among other things. Martin has held several positions in the Republican Party. On Tuesday the attorney sent an email to supporters and journalists announcing his bid to succeed Republican Rep. Ron Bacon, who's not seeking re-election, according to the Evansville Courier & Press. The district covers most of Warrick County, along with parts of Pike and Spencer counties. Martin didn't return a message left Sunday seeking comment. He was alone in a car traveling on State Road 261 in Newburgh when he was pulled over. He failed field sobriety tests, according to state police. Results of a blood-alcohol test were expected within weeks.

18-year-old dead in suburban Indy shooting

FRANKLIN — Police in suburban Indianapolis said an 18-year-old man died after a Saturday night shooting. The shooting took place in Franklin near the Boys & Girls Club. Police responding at the scene found the man suffering from gunshot wounds. Medics pronounced him dead at the scene. Authorities haven't released his name. Franklin police were investigating the circumstances leading up to the shooting. Authorities sought the public's help in identifying a "red Dodge Dart or similar vehicle" that may have been involved in the shooting. The car has a dent on the driver's side door, police said.

New chair chosen for education council

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Council on Postsecondary Education has chosen Ben Brandstetter of Hebron as its new chairman. He replaces outgoing Chairman Sherrill Zimmerman of Prospect. Brandstetter is president of Brandstetter Carroll Inc., a national architectural and engineering firm. Kimberley Halbauer of Fort Thomas was chosen as vice chairwoman. Halbaurer is a senior vice president and investment advisers executive for Fifth Third Bank in Cincinnati, Dayton and northern Kentucky, the council said in a news release. The council Friday also extended President Aaron Thompson's contract for an additional 2 1/2 years, through June 30, 2023. His contract was due to expire at the end of this year.

Lottery Corp. CEO to retire in March

LOUISVILLE — The president and CEO of Kentucky Lottery Corp. will be stepping down in March. Tom Delacenserie, 71, said in a statement that his retirement from the position will be effective March 6. Delacenserie took the role in 2017 and in that time span sales increased from about $1 billion to more than $1.1 billion. "We've accomplished a tremendous amount in the last two and a half years," Delacenserie said during a lottery board meeting last week. "We strengthened our brand by creating a new lottery logo, improved product offerings by increasing payouts on our Scratch games, developed exciting new draw games, and enhanced our advertising support. And we upgraded product delivery systems, including vending machines with state-of-the-art touch screen technology." The lottery broke sales records each year under his leadership. Funding for college scholarship and grant programs also increased from $247.7 million in 2017 to $272.7 million last year. Kentucky Lottery Chief Operating Officer Marty Gibbs will serve as interim president and CEO.

Man arrested in fatal shooting of 2 in lot

BOWLING GREEN — A Kentucky man has been arrested in the fatal shooting of two men in a Bowling Green restaurant parking lot, police said. The shooting occurred at an O'Charley's restaurant in Warren County on Friday night, police said in a statement posted on Facebook. Police announced Saturday that Terry A. Stice II, 44, of Bowling Green, was charged with two counts of attempted murder and possession of a handgun by a convicted felon. Stice was being held Sunday in the Warren County Regional Jail. Police identified the victims as Elijsha Taylor, 21, and Michael Russell, 40. Their hometowns were not released. The statement said detectives determined Taylor and Russell were involved in a physical altercation and that Taylor shot Russell. Stice then allegedly fired numerous rounds at Taylor, killing him. A vehicle then struck Stice and fled the scene. Stice allegedly shot at the vehicle as it was leaving the parking lot, the statement said. Police said in a separate statement that the shootings are believed to be related to a long-standing dispute between the victims and suspect.

OBITUARIES

Bonnie Stockdale

Bonnie Jean McKeand Stockdale, 84, of Greenville, Indiana, died Friday, Jan. 24, 2020, at the Baptist Health-Floyd Hospital in New Albany, Indiana.

She was born Jan. 4, 1936, in Hanover, Indiana, to Ernest Van Sr. and Pearl M. Sparks McKeand. She grew up in Hanover and was a 1955 graduate of Saluda High School. She worked early in life for Scott's Five and Dime Store, Ace Hardware, and BMP Auto, and, for a time, for her brother Danny. She was a member of the Hanover United Methodist Church and the Pilot Club. She loved watching basketball games on television as well as other sports and crocheting. Her favorite teams were the Louisville Cardinals and the Purdue Boilermakers.

Surviors include her sons, Larry Stockdale of Owensboro, Kentucky; Tommy Stockdale of Heber Springs, Arkansas; and Dennis Stockdale of Greenville; her brother, Danny McKeand of Madison, Indiana; and 10 grandchildren, eight great-grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her parents; her husband of 57 years, Lawrence Le Roy Stockdale; a sister, Cora Ann Wiley, and a brother, Ernest Van McKeand Jr.

Funeral services will be 11 a.m. Friday, Jan. 31, 2020, at the Morgan & Nay Funeral Centre in Madison. Interment will follow in the New Bethel Cemetery in Chelsea, Indiana. Visitation will be from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Thursday and Friday from 9 a.m. until the time of service at the funeral home.

Memorial contributions may be made to any area food banks. Cards are available at the funeral home.

How misinformation will spread in 2020

Director of IU's observatory on social media explains

By MICHAEL RESCHKE
(Bloomington) Herald-Times

If you use the internet for any significant amount of time this year, you will encounter attempts to manipulate your opinion. Companies that run social media platforms are aware of this and are taking steps to address it, but they can't keep up.

Facebook is taking down billions of fake accounts every quarter. This is done through machine learning, and it's not perfect.

Even if Facebook took down 99% of all fake accounts, it would still be missing millions. And new ones are being created every day.

Combine this with deep learning, a branch of artificial intelligence that can be used to create fake videos, and it's hard to know what to believe and what not to believe.

"Yes, it is scary," said Filippo Menczer, a professor at the Luddy School of Informatics, Computing, and Engineering.

Menczer is also director of IU's Observatory on Social Media, an entity created to study the role of media and technology in society, as well as curb the spread of misinformation online.

He explained how social media can be used to influence public opinion and what you can do about it.

The success of social media platforms is based on algorithms. Those algorithms are designed to feed users a steady stream of content that keeps them coming back for more. This is accomplished by identifying people's biases.

The algorithms used by large social media platforms, such as Facebook, can tell with 99% accuracy whether a user leans liberal or conservative, Menczer said. They do this by analyzing everything an account does — the things it posts, the links it clicks and other accounts it follows.

The algorithms are constantly being improved. And they are also being exploited.

"There are factories with humans in developing countries that do nothing but create fake accounts all day long," Menczer said. "It's an entire market."

Those fake accounts can be purchased for a few hundred bucks and used to attack someone or promote something. They are also harder to detect than they used to be.

A fake account can be controlled by a bot, or a computer program that performs automatic repetitive tasks. Those are easy to spot because they don't behave like humans. But now, software exists that allows one person to control hundreds of accounts at once.

Looking at only one of those fake accounts in isolation, it can seem legitimate. To identify it as fake, someone or something has to compare it to other accounts and recognize all those accounts are posting the same thing at the same time. And that's nearly impossible.

"You can't compare everything with everything else," Menczer said.

To complicate things even more, deep learning has given rise to the deep fake. This technology can be used to create everything from fake images to fake audio recordings that are so realistic, humans can't always recognize them as hoaxes.

"An expert can usually tell," Menczer said. "But when it's done with enough resources, you can create a video of Trump that's his voice and his face, and you can make it do anything you want."

A fake video can then be shared by multiple fake accounts controlled by a single entity. Social media platforms will recognize this activity and the fake video will begin to appear on the news feeds of other accounts. Real users will then share the content and it will continue to spread before anyone can identify it as a hoax.

While many people have come to associate the spread of misinformation with attempts to influence national elections, the practice is not limited to politics. In fact, it's becoming increasingly easy for the average person to target any individual for any reason.

"An undergraduate student can create a program in a week to control hundreds of accounts," Menczer said.

Software that allows someone to manipulate video is almost as easy to use as Photoshop. Menczer said this software has been used to create so-called revenge porn.

The term refers to sexually explicit images of a person posted online, without that person's consent, as a form of revenge or harassment. The images can be real, obtained with consent during a relationship, then shared publicly after a breakup. But they can also be created.

Deep learning can be used to take the image of someone's face and put it on the body of someone else in a pornographic video.

Misinformation campaigns can also be used to make money. Menczer cited crypto currency pump-and-dump schemes as an example. Crypto currency is any form of currency that only exists digitally, such as Bitcoin.

Fake social media accounts can be used to drive investment in a specific form of crypto currency, artificially inflating its value. Then, the people behind the pump-and-dump scheme sell the crypto currency they bought before the price went up to make a profit.

The big fear is that misinformation campaigns will be used to influence the outcome of the 2020 U.S. presidential election, Menczer said. There is some disagreement about whether that's possible.

But Menczer pointed out the margin of victory in some states is small. According to U.S. News and World report, the difference between winning and losing was less than 5% in 10 states in the 2016 presidential election.

While sophisticated technology has enabled the spread of misinformation, ways to combat it are simple.

"Don't get your news from social media," Menczer said.

Instead, he suggested seeking information from a broad range of actual news outlets. Doing this, people will be more likely to see multiple points of view, rather than those selected to match their biases.

People should also be more selective when it comes to what they share on social media. Things go viral because people share them, Menczer said. That means everyone who uses social media bears at least some responsibility when it comes to preventing the spread of misinformation.

Menczer would like to see people stop sharing news stories on social media altogether. He understands that's unlikely, so he suggested people follow a self-imposed checklist:

• Read articles before sharing them because headlines can be misleading.

• Consider where the article is coming from. Is it a trusted source?

• Ask why you're sharing an article. Is it out of anger or to inform?

• At the very least, wait five minutes.

The Observatory on Social Media has also developed tools to help people determine the validity of what they're seeing online. One of those is Botometer, formerly known as BotOrNot. This tool checks the activity of a Twitter account and provides a score based on how likely the account is to be a bot.

Another tool is Hoaxy. It allows users to visualize the spread of claims online. It also employs Botometer to show users how likely it is that a bot is involved in the dissemination of a specific claim.

In addition to the observatory's research and development of tools, Menczer and his colleagues are developing a new master's program designed to teach journalists data analysis.

"I don't know if this will be the solution," Menczer said, "but we are trying."

Don't be duped

Filippo Menczer, director of the Observatory on Social Media at Indiana University, offered the following tips to avoid getting duped by misleading information spread by fake social media accounts.

• Don't get your news from social media.

• Learn the difference between news and opinion. "When you watch CNN at night, most of that is not news," Menczer said, "it's opinion."

• Be skeptical of news articles you see posted on social media. If you want to read an article, go to the website of the outlet it originated from.

• Use social media for its original purpose: to keep in touch with friends and family. "Share pictures of your cats, share pictures of your children," Menczer said. "People should get news from the news."

• If you do feel compelled to share a news article, read it first. Headlines can be misleading.

• At the very least, wait five minutes before posting something.

U.S. opioid grants can be used for cocaine, meth addiction

By CHRISTINE VESTAL
Stateline.org

The Trump administration has agreed to allow state drug treatment agencies to expand a $1.5 billion opioid grant program to treat people with addictions to cocaine and methamphetamine, according to the Associated Press.

The new flexibility in the previously opioid-targeted grants from the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration was written into a major spending bill passed by Congress at the end of last year and comes in response to pressure from state officials, AP reported.

Nationwide, the number of opioid-related overdose deaths is declining slightly. But addiction and overdose deaths from cocaine and methamphetamine are rising, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

Compared with the old variety of meth cooked in backyard labs, the current version of the drug is cheaper, stronger and far more plentiful. Cocaine also has become cheaper and more plentiful. Meth is primarily trafficked from Mexico and cocaine is smuggled from Colombia, according to the Drug Enforcement Administration.

In California and most Western states, the number of people addicted to stimulants has been and continues to be greater than those addicted to opioids.

Roughly 14,000 cocaine users and 10,000 meth users died in the United States in 2017, an increase of more than a third compared with 2016 and triple the number of deaths in 2012, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. That puts both stimulants on par with heroin, which was involved in 15,000 overdose deaths in 2017, according to the CDC.

By most accounts, meth and cocaine are harder to quit than opioids, in part because no medications have been approved by the Food and Drug Administration to stop cravings for the stimulants, whereas three effective drugs are available to help people recover from opioid addiction.

Rolling Rebels roll to wins over CAI, Austin

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

Southwestern held the lead for 30 minutes and fended off numerous runs by Christian Academy of Indiana en route to a convincing 65-48 win over the Warriors in boys basketball action on Friday night at King Gymnasium.

The Rebels, now winners of five-straight, toughed one out against a bigger and stronger Christian Academy squad but Southwestern took the challenge and ran with it, using defense and key shots at various points in the game to eventually pull away for a victory.

"All in all I thought we did a good job tonight," Southwestern head coach Jerry Bomholt said. "I was proud of the kids and that's five in a row now. We're starting to bounce back and get our mojo back a little bit. We had three great practices this week and I thought that carried over tonight into the basketball game."

Austin Kramer's ninth point of the game — a three-quarter court heave at the end of the first quarter that found the bottom of the net — gave Southwestern its first double-digit lead of the game and the margin stayed intact the rest of the first half as the Rebels led by as many as 16 points before settling on a 29-18 advantage at halftime. By the third quarter, a 5-0 run off the shooting of Foster Mefford with five minutes to go pushed the lead to 13 points but the Warriors finally pieced together enough offense for a serious run.

Nick Conrad buried a 3-pointer and Brady Dunn followed with a bucket and a free throw to cut the Rebel lead to 39-32 but Southwestern responded with two free throws by Kramer and put the game back at 41-32. Christian Academy made another push before the end of the period, using a 3-pointer by Ethan Carrier and basket by Christopher Ballew to get within two possessions and a late Caleb Doss 3-pointer with 1:14 remaining in the quarter made it 43-40 as momentum took a favorable turn to the Warriors.

But Southwestern remained calm and went back to work to never lead by less than five points the rest of the way. Mitchell Cline's baseline jumper allowed the Rebels a 45-40 lead heading into the fourth quarter and that five-point margin hung around until the 4:57 mark when T.J. Proctor hit a free throw and Christian Academy trailed 50-45.

With the Warriors still hopeful, the Rebels never allowed another run to come to fruition and finished the final 4:57 on a 15-3 rally.

Zach Cole kick-started the run with a free throw and later hit a bucket underneath to give Southwestern a 15-point lead but the rest of the run belonged to Mefford and Kramer, who combined to finally put away the Warriors.

The duo drove to the basket and drew contact, leading to them hitting a total of six free throws during the fourth quarter surge. Mefford added two field goals during the run with Kramer adding a bucket underneath. Christian Academy was limited to just a field goal — a 3-pointer by Brady Dunn off the bench — but Southwestern scored the final eight points and cruised the rest of the way.

"When (Christian Academy) made their run we responded," Bomholt said of the second half. "We ran a little set play and I think it was Billy (Eccles) who knocked down a three in the corner and that deflated them a little bit. We hit our free throws and kept them off the line. Another thing that we were able to do tonight was get some isolation with our guards. Foster (Mefford), AK (Austin Kramer) and Zach (Cole) all did a great job of taking the ball to the hole. That put us at the free-throw line and put them in foul trouble."

Mefford led all scorers with 21 points and had nine rebounds to go along with five assists. Kramer followed closely behind with 20 points along with seven rebounds and five steals. Eccles joined the two in double

Cubs' comeback falls short against Floyd

Madison put together a frantic fourth quarter rally but ultimately fell short in a 69-63 loss at home to Floyd Central on Saturday.

The Cubs played arguably one of their worst games of the season over the first two quarters, digging themselves a 38-25 hole by halftime. Floyd led by as many as 16 points (43-27) early in the third quarter and still held a 52-38 advantage with just over two minutes left in the frame.

But Madison woke up and over the final 10 minutes, the Cubs outscored their Hoosier Hills Conference rivals 25-13 and pulled within two points with 45 seconds to go before Floyd hit four free throws down the stretch to finally put the game away.

Madison coach Sherron Wilkerson was happy to see his team respond with its back against the wall but also noted that the Cubs will need to play better if they want to compete against programs like Floyd Central.

"They did a very good job of fighting back but I think the question is, why did we find ourselves in that position?" Wilkerson said. "We've got some positive things to build on, but for whatever reason, this bug keeps coming back and biting us and we can't seem to shake it."

Floyd Central (11-3, 3-1 HHC) started the game hot, getting 19 points from Jake Heidbreder in the first half alone and shooting 50 percent from the floor while turning the ball over only two times.

Madison tried to keep up, but other than senior Mason Welsh, points were hard to come by. Welsh scored 17 of his team's 25 points in the first half, hitting 7-of-11 overall and 3-of-5 from 3-point range while the rest of the Cubs combined to go just 4-of-15.

Welsh's scoring dipped in the second half — he had only five points over that span — but he made up for it with a stellar defensive job on Heidbreder, holding the Highlander junior to just five points of his own as the Cubs began battling back.

It was a team effort down the stretch for Madison (10-4, 1-3 HHC). Junior Luke Miller, who was held scoreless in the first half, scored 18 points in the second half to lead the rally. And after hitting only 42 percent of their shots in the first half, the Cubs knocked down 54 percent (13-of-24) in the second.

But despite the defensive effort on Heidbreder, Floyd never slowed down. The Highlanders hit 51% (24-for-47) for the game, including 9-of-16 on 3-pointers, as well as going 12-of-14 from the free-throw line.

"We need everybody against teams like this. They're a top 10 team in the state and obviously very well deserved. They're well-coached and very disciplined. We tried to speed

HS BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

Cubs fail to hold lead in loss to East

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison jumped out to a big lead in the first half but couldn't hold on, falling to Columbus East 64-59 at home in girls basketball on Saturday afternoon.

The Cubs dominated the first quarter and led 17-8 after the first eight minutes and increased that lead to 31-18 by halftime. But East ripped off a 20-9 run in the third quarter and 26-19 in the fourth to post the come-from-behind-win.

Daesja Jay scored 19 points on 5-of-8 shooting to lead Madison while Lundun Perry had 17 points on 5-of-9 shooting. Paige Young chipped in eight points. Jade Nutley struggled with just three points but pulled down 12 rebounds.

Gabby Dean led Columbus East with 20 points and Koryn Greiwe had 16 points.

Madison, now 12-8 overall, finishes the Hoosier Hills Conference portion of its schedule with a 3-4 record. The Cubs close out the regular season this week with a pair of home games, against sectional foe North Harrison Tuesday and Class A No. 2 Trinity Lutheran on Thursday.

CAM beats Cannelton

Christian Academy of Madison got payback for one of its four losses this season with a dominating 53-32 win over Cannelton at home on Saturday.

Cannelton stunned CAM 50-36 in the championship game of the Southern Roads Conference Tournament in December but this one was the polar opposite.

The Defenders began pulling away in the second quarter. After taking a 10-6 lead in the first, CAM went on a 13-5 run in the second and a 15-5 run in the third and eventually led by nearly 30 points before clearing its bench.

Trent Haggard and Luke Carter each scored 16 points to lead Christian Academy while Clay Carter added 15. Haggard also had nine rebounds.

CAM, now 21-4 overall and 3-0 in the Southern Roads Conference, can wrap up its second-straight league championship with two wins this weekend. The Defenders travel to Union (Dugger) on Friday then host Evansville Christian on Saturday.

Trimble girls split two

Trimble County's girls basketball split a pair of home games over the weekend.

The Lady Raiders dropped a 63-34 loss to 29th District foe South Oldham on Friday and then defeated Villa Madonna 58-39 for homecoming on Saturday.

Against South Oldham, Abby Ponder scored seven points while Danielle Craig and Emma Ginn each scored six.

Against, Villa Madonna, Shelby Wilcoxson had 23 points and Craig scored 12.

Trimble County, now 7-18 overall and 0-3 in district play, traveled to Henry County on Monday and hosts Williamstown on Friday.

TC boys claim win

Trimble County boys basketball finished off a homecoming sweep nu beating Villa Madonna 74-62 on Saturday.

Reece Webster scored 21 points to lead the Raiders while Dylan Jennings had 14 and Tate Ogburn scored 10.

Trimble, now 4-15 on the season, hosts Spencer County Tuesday and travels to Newport on Friday.

Pacer rally falls short

Switzerland County rallied from an 18-point deficit to tie the game late but ended up falling 65-54 to Rising Sun Friday on the road.

The Pacers trailed 17-8 at halftime and 27-9 with 4:12 left in the third quarter before catching fire. Switzerland outscored Rising Sun 36-27 over the next nine minutes to tie the game at 44-44 with 3:40 left in the game.

The rest of the game was played a frantic pace with Rising Sun coming out on top.

Damian Breeck had 23 points to lead Switzerland while Landon Wilks scored 18.

Switzerland, now 5-9 overall and 0-3 in the Ohio River Valley Conference, hosts New Washington on Friday.

Madison V2 wrestlers wrap up season

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Madison's V2 wrestling team closed out the regular season with a 3-2 performance at the Milan Invitational on Saturday.

The Cubs scored wins over Switzerland County by 45-12, New Washington 54-18 and Jennings County 41-30 and lost to Greensburg 42-38 and Milan 49-16.

Three Madison wrestlers went 5-0 on the day. Jacob McRoberts improved to 38-7 at 126 pounds, Luke McCarty is now 26-14 at 145 pounds and Louis Humes is now 20-5 at 152 pounds.

"Jacob had a nice day today. A good win over Milan and with his 5-0 mark he is one win away from joining our 100 win club," Madison coach Tyson Skinner said. "Luke wrestled strong all day and is looking good heading into Sectionals. We bumped Lou up a weight class and he used his quickness to his advantage. I'm very impressed by his natural ability as a first year wrestler."

Kelsey Bilz (106 pounds), Bryce Turner (113), Collin Fulton (195/220) and Justice Stone (285) each win 4-1, Caleb Horn (195/220) went 2-3, and Christian Bell (182) went 1-4.

No full results for Switzerland County were available, but against Madison, Jacob Wolf claimed a win at 132 pounds and Tyler Lieland won at 182.

Madison's V2 finishes the season with a 3-9 record. The Cubs' next meet will be the IHSAA Sectional at Jennings County on Saturday.

SWIMMING ROUNDUP

Swiss boys pick up win at Southwestern

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Switzerland County's boys picked up a win in a five-way swim meet at Southwestern on Saturday.

The Pacers scored 93 points to beat out Scottsburg, which was second with 49. Henryville was third with 46, Southwestern was fourth with 33 and Shawe was fifth with nine.

Scottsburg won the girls meet with 110 points, Switzerland was second with 66, South Ripley was third with 56, Southwestern was fourth with 45 and Henryville was fifth with eight.

"This was our third meet this week, so we were a little tired. We looked at this meet as an opportunity to practice the little things that we harp about every day. We are about to run out of those chances," Southwestern coach Shelly Anderson said. "We were very pleased for Audrey Bare who dropped her time in the 50 free. She has worked hard trying to drop just by tenths of a second. She has come a long way this season."

Switzerland won five individual events and two relays to claim the win.

Adrian Armstrong had two wins, claiming the 100-yard freestyle in 53.24 and the 100 breaststroke in 1:09.48. Nathan Furnish won the 50 freestyle in 25.08, J.W. Goldsberry won the 100 butterfly in 1:33.44, and Julio Regueira, 100 backstroke in 1:06.24. Furnish, Michael Stanton, Regueira and Armstrong won the 200 freestyle relay in 1:45.20 and Furnish, J.W. Goldsberry, Regueira and Armstrong won the 400 freestyle relay in 4:03.04.

Caleb Geary won two events to lead Southwestern. Geary won the 200 individual medley in 2:20.99 and the 500 freestyle in 5:46.19.

Switzerland County's Allison Furnish won the 200 freestyle in 2:15.73 and joined with Alisha Detmer, Brooke Johnson and Deanna Voris to win the 200 freestyle relay 1:58.75 and the 400 freestyle relay in 4:34.95.

Belle Crawford won two individual events to lead the Southwestern girls. Crawford won the 200 individual medley in 2:33.06 and the 100 butterfly in 1:07.19. Julia Worcester won the 500 freestyle in 6:09.59 for the Rebels.

Other top finishes for Switzerland's boys were: Stanton, second, 200 free, 2:39.10 and fourth, 500 free, 7:26.74; Stanton, Levi Goldsberry, J.W. Goldsberry and Regueira, second, 200 medley relay, 2:27.19; J.W. Goldsberry, third, 200 IM, 3:09.60; Furnish, third, 100 back, 1:12.02; and Levi Goldsberry, fifth, 200 free, 3:01.76 and fifth, 50 free, 34.07.

Southwestern's Ethan Besse was second in the 100 freestyle in 57.43 and second in the 100 backstroke in 1:07.50, and Andrew Stoner was second in the 100 breaststroke in 1:23.35 and third in the 100 freestyle in 1:04.70.

Shawe's Ale Giaveri was second in the 50 freestyle in 27.25 and third in the 100 breaststroke in 1:25.78.

Other top finishes for Switzerland County's girls were: Furnish, second, 100 fly, 1:19.29; Voris, second, 100 back, 1:17.34 and fourth, 500 free, 6:58.28; Detmer, third, 200 IM, 3:04.75 and third, 500 free, 6:53.29; and Johnson, Ning Wang, Josie Stogsdill and Zoey Walston, third, 200 medley relay, 2:58.92.

Other top finishes for the Southwestern girls were: Worcester, second, 200 free, 2:16.37; Amiah Owen, Worcester, Crawford and Bare, second, 200 medley relay, 2:19.94 and fourth, 200 free relay, 2:06.96; Owen, fifth, 100 free, 1:11.43 and sixth, 100 breast, 1:37.54.

Switzerland host Milan, Lawrenceburg and South Ripley Thursday. Southwestern competes in the Switzerland Invitational Saturday.

figures with 11 points.

Christian Academy (8-7) struggled against Southwestern's defense and shot just 35 percent from the field. No player scored in double figures and 6-foot-8 center Bailey Conrad, the team's leading scorer, was limited to just eight points on 3-of-13 shooting. Proctor and Dunn each added eight points but both battled foul trouble throughout the night.

"I thought we kept the big kid (Bailey Conrad) in check," Bomholt said. "And I tell you, that big kid is a player and he's a real nice player. So we did a good job with that and I don't think they had a guy in double figures so I was really pleased."

SOUTHWESTERN 71, AUSTIN 41
(Saturday)

Southwestern dominated the second quarter and rolled to a 71-41 win at Austin in boys basketball on Saturday.

The Rebels opened the game with a 15-9 lead after the first quarter but then outscored the Eagles 16-4 in the second period to blow open the contest. Southwestern then won the third quarter by five points and the fourth by seven to pull away.

Austin Kramer scored 22 points to pace the Rebels while Billy Eccles added 16 points and Foster Mefford scored 14 to give Southwestern three in double figures.

Trey Hargrave led the Eagles, now 2-12, with seven points.

Southwestern, now 11-5 on the season and winners of six-straight, travels to Milan on Friday night for a big Ohio River Valley Conference game.

them up and they kept their composure," Wilkerson said. "For us, we've got to get out of getting off to slow starts. I think a big piece of it is a maturity issue. We've got to understand who we are facing. Anytime you have an HHC opponent, you are going to have to bring your 'A' game. I thought we brought our 'C' game in the first half and our 'A-minus' game in the second half."

The loss was Madison's second-straight while navigating the toughest section of its schedule. This weekend brings two sectional opponents, including Class 3A No. 1 Silver Creek, the defending state champion, Friday on the road. The Cubs host North Harrison on Saturday.

BRIDGE

REVEALING BIDDING IS A TWO-EDGED CALL

Georges Braque, who was a French artist and sculptor, said, "Reality only reveals itself when it is illuminated by a ray of poetry."

The reality of a bridge hand reveals itself more clearly each time its holder bids. He hopes it will help partner more than the opponents -- but that doesn't always happen.

This deal was played in a pairs event. What do you think of the bidding, given that West's two-spade overcall was a Michaels Cue-Bid, showing at least 5-5 in hearts and either minor? How did the play proceed in five spades after West led the heart queen?

The bidding was flawed. West should have passed over four spades. His partner could also see the prevailing vulnerability. North should have doubled five diamonds with such a defensive hand and two of his kings in West's suits. Note that if South gains a heart ruff, the contract goes down four, minus 800.

Declarer feared that West had 6-5-1-1 distribution. Then South would have had to guess whether the singleton club was an honor or not. But after some thought, he won with his heart ace, played a spade to the king and returned a club to his jack. West took the trick and led another heart to dummy's king. Then declarer ran the club nine. When it held, he took the spade finesse and cruised home. Or, if East had covered the club nine, South would have won with his ace, played a club to the eight and again taken the marked spade finesse.

West's Michaels Cue-Bid was poetry to South's ears, but we all would have made the bid, hoping for a different reality.

'Wildlife Sounds of the Night' at Ivy Tech

Courier staff report

Learn about the weird or eerie sounds you sometimes hear during the night at the Big Oaks Conservation Society meeting Feb. 3 at 6:30 p.m. at Ivy Tech Community College Madison campus.

Many species of wildlife, including birds, mammals, frogs, toads and insects, are active during the night. Rob Chapman, park ranger at Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge, will present "Wildlife Sounds of the Night" about the many strange and fascinating sounds you may encounter outside. This presentation is open to the public.

Chapman has worked as a wildlife biologist throughout the eastern United States during his 23-year career. He previously worked in the swamps and coastal areas of eastern North Carolina, the prairies of Oklahoma, the rugged hills of the Missouri Ozarks and the forest and agricultural landscapes of Indiana.

Chapman, a native Hoosier, has a bachelor's degree in Wildlife Science from Purdue University and an master's degree in Prairie Ecology from Oklahoma State University.

The Big Oaks Conservation Society is the non-profit support group of the Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge.

Society members work closely with refuge staff to enhance public awareness, use and appreciation for the natural and cultural assets unique to the Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge. Meetings are the first Monday of selected months at 6:30 p.m.

The Big Oaks National Wildlife Refuge consists of about 50,000 acres on the former Jefferson Proving Ground in Jennings, Ripley and Jefferson counties.

The refuge is managed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and provides public use opportunities such as hunting, fishing, wildlife observation, photography, interpretation and environmental education.

Finding support with alcoholism

Annie Lane

Dear Readers: Many of you were touched by the husband "Anonymous," who wrote a letter about the loss of his wife to the disease of alcoholism. She is still alive, but the woman he married was a different person than the one who is an alcoholic. Most recommended Al-Anon, a spin-off from Alcoholics Anonymous that focuses on helping people who are suffering because of a loved one's drinking problem. Here is just a sampling of letters in support of Al-Anon, which I heartily support:

Dear Annie: My heart went out to the suffering husband, "Anonymous," for the despair that he felt because of his wife's alcoholism. I am a widow and was married for 44 years to an alcoholic. I would highly recommend that "Anonymous" attend Al-Anon meetings. Al-Anon is a highly effective recovery program for anyone who has a problem with someone else's drinking. Al-Anon offered me a lifeline of sanity and serenity that had eroded through years of living with an alcoholic. Even though I no longer have alcoholics in my life, I happily continue to practice this program in all my affairs. — Been There

Dear Annie: I just finished reading the letter in today's paper concerning the husband whose wife is in the downward spiral of alcoholism. I, too, was in the downward spiral of alcoholism. I wanted to control or quit my drinking, but the addiction was too strong. I just about destroyed my family.

My wonderful wife talked to some Al-Anon members concerning my drinking and behavior. Because she loves me, she followed their advice, and, because she did, I took my last drink on the evening of Feb. 20, 1985. Al-Anon members take no prisoners. Because my wife decided to go to Al-Anon, I am alive today. We have been married for 55 years, and I have no desire to drink. My suggestion is for the husband to get involved with the Al-Anon program. — One Day at a Time

Dear Readers: Thank you again for recommending Al-Anon and telling your stories. There was one reader with a different perspective, and her letter follows:

Dear Annie: It was apparent to me that this letter by "Anonymous" is only about the writer and his supposed problems. There was no real mention of the alcoholic, her name, her feelings, her circumstances or even her supposed crimes or attempts at healing, just judgment, blame, self-pity and latent sexism.

Who could live with that pathetic, emotional mess, cold sober, all those Hank Williams men with broken hearts? Why is his letter about his changed world, when she is the one at medical risk?

My father was an alcoholic, and my mother hated him for it; she set up unrealistic white-knuckle abstention goals and denied the medical care and the true emotional understanding involved in treating an alcoholic. Her denial drove him to unattainable perfection: to work and make more money and be sober. Nothing was ever enough. Once the love dried up, there was not much comfort for him but that booze.

My mother was "obviously" in the right because she did not drink. Her righteousness was unassailable. But hers was the cold heart, and he died from it. She is now happily alive on the enormous fortune he left her from his hard work, which he was able to execute with his drinking.

Poor Mr. Anonymous has a whole lot of AA meetings to attend before he is in the position to change his circumstances. — She Needs a Voice

Dear She Needs a Voice: Thank you for sharing your perspective. Clearly, your resentment of your mother's treatment of your father is eating away at you. Please read the letters that preceded yours and check out Al-Anon. You are likely to find love and support in the meetings.
